The Process Assessment of the Learner™-Second Edition, Diagnostic Assessment for Reading and Writing (PAL™-II Reading and Writing) measures the development of psychological processes directly related to the acquisition of reading and writing skills. It helps struggling learners with learning disabilities in reading and/or writing to increase their proficiency and progress with these skills.

PAL-II Reading and Writing is your answer to understanding why a student has difficulty in reading and writing

- Targets the assessment by identifying specific subtests to administer related to suspected disorders or referral issues
- Links to corresponding research-based interventions and lessons
- Assesses specific phonological, orthographic, and morphological skills related to reading and writing achievement at various grade levels K to 6
- Includes working memory components that support reading and writing acquisition
- Assesses handwriting, spelling, and composing of narratives and essays
- Provides guidance for differential diagnosis of dyslexia, dysgraphia, and oral and written language learning disability (OWL LD)
